ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The service function and information design process is automated in order to shorten the design process period. The same process is based upon the relationships between activities and the information that the activities provide and consume. The relationships are maintained in a predetermined format and are updated by any changes that are affecting the relationships. In addition, the activities are further defined by detailed activities.